Flower Power

In March of 2009, local garden enthusiasts were, for the first time in 138 years, unable to partake of a time-honored springtime tradition: The New England Spring Flower Show, a much-beloved annual event presented by the Massachusetts Horticultural Society. Due to the poor economy, MassHort pulled the plug on the popular show, causing spirits across the region to wilt.

This spring, however, the show is experiencing a rebirth appropriate to the season, as expo organizers The Paragon Group have revived the event, bringing the all-new Boston Flower & Garden Show to the Seaport World Trade Center from March 24–28. The show, which boasts the theme "A Feast for the Senses," expects to attract 75,000 fans of all things floral to survey more than 100,000 square feet of exhibits—including 30 major gardens designed by landscaping professionals and garden clubs—and a marketplace boasting 270 retail vendors.

Beyond the obvious appeal of the acres of beauteous and fragrant blossoms on display, the Boston Flower & Garden Show also offers a full schedule of special events, including celebrity appearances by HGTV's Anthony Gilardi, who offers do-it-yourself garden carpentry tips (March 27), and Patti Moreno of gardengirltv.com (March 28), who provides advice on how to craft a living garden in an urban backyard setting. And in addition to the feast for your eyes, the show also offers something for your taste buds with the Garden of Cakes exhibit that showcases edible floral designs from top Boston-area bakeries, and special afternoon Garden Teas that take place across the street at Aura restaurant in the Seaport Hotel.

So, if you're looking for the perfect way to say goodbye to winter and hello to spring, come to the Seaport World Trade Center and say it with flowers. Refer to listing, page 48.

Go Green

10 fun ways to celebrate Irish culture in Boston

by Josh B. Wardrop

1. EAT A HEARTY BREAKFAST

Any busy day of exploring Irish culture in Boston should start off with the most important meal of the day, and the Irish certainly know a thing or two about that. When you're in the mood for a heaping plate of fried sausages, eggs, bacon, baked beans and the ever-mysterious black pudding (a sausage made from cooked, congealed animal blood) there are plenty of eateries and pubs in the area that do the traditional Irish breakfast deliciously and authentically, such as The Independent (75 Union Square, Somerville, 617-440-6022); The Asgard (refer to listing, page 35); The Lansdowne (refer to listing, page 71); The Green Briar (304 Washington St., Brighton, 617-789-4100); and Matt Murphy's (14 Harvard St., Brookline, 617-232-0188).

2. TAKE A STROLL ALONG THE IRISH HERITAGE TRAIL

This three-mile self-guided walking tour through downtown Boston, the North End, Beacon Hill and Back Bay details more than 300 years of Irish history, showcasing the politicians, artists and war heroes who personify the rebellious and triumphant nature of the Boston Irish. View a garden dedicated to Boston's most famous Irish-American matriarch, Rose Fitzgerald Kennedy; see a flag waved by the entirely Irish 9th Regiment of Infantry during the Civil War; and visit a memorial commemorating the tragic Great Famine that claimed a million lives and forced two million others to flee Ireland. Refer to listing, page 16.

3. CHECK OUT LOCAL LIBRARIES

March may be the month that everyone's a little Irish, but some of Boston's cultural institutions offer opportunities to learn about Irish culture all year long. Boston College's John J. Burns Library (Bapst Library Building on the BC campus) offers one of the finest assemblages of Irish cultural artifacts in the city, including thousands of newspapers, periodicals, land deeds and rare books and manuscripts by prominent Irish names like Brendan Behan, Samuel Beckett and William Butler Yeats; an extensive Irish music collection; and a digital database that includes a photographic retrospective of longtime Speaker of the House Thomas J. "Tip" O'Neill. Through May 28, the library hosts the special exhibit A Poet at Work: Brendan Galvin's Papers.

The Boston Public Library (refer to listing, page 14) houses within its voluminous collections an Irish Studies section with subsections that includes tomes on Irish legal history, modern Irish history and a "literary Dublin" collection. And if exploring general Irish history isn't enough for you, the BPL offers a chance to trace your own family tree to the Auld Sod, hosting an Irish-American Catholic genealogy talk on March 24 at 6:30 p.m. at the library's central branch in Copley Square.

Finally, the John F. Kennedy Presidential Library and Museum (refer to listing, page 51) honors the personal history of Boston's most famous Irish-American, and celebrates JFK's Celtic heritage and pride in its many exhibits, including one that traces the history of the Kennedy clan all the way back to the Fitzgeralds' and the Kennedys' respective emigration to the U.S. from Ireland.

4. WAVE A FLAG AT THE SOUTH BOSTON ST. PATRICK'S DAY PARADE

The traditionally Irish neighborhood of South Boston is the epicenter of St. Patrick's Day celebrations in Boston, most notably demonstrated by its legendary parade, one of the largest St. Patrick's Day events in the world. Every year, 600,000 Bostonians and visitors pack the streets of "Southie" to experience this festive procession featuring marching and bagpipe bands from America and the Emerald Isle, exciting floats and other Gaelic-inspired treats. The 109th annual parade kicks off at 1 p.m. on Sunday, March 14, from the Broadway MBTA station on the Red Line.

5. GET FRISKY WITH WHISKEY

When an Irishman raises a glass to toast special occasions ("Beannachtam na Feile Padraig," for example, means "Happy St. Patrick's Day"), more often than not it's filled with that Celtic liquor of choice—a fine malted whiskey. If you've ever wanted to be more educated about this popular libation, the Boston Center for Adult Education (122 Arlington St.) is offering a one-night Irish Whiskey Tasting on March 17 at 6 p.m. Master of Scotch Brad Jarvis discusses the major differences in style between the North and South regions of Ireland, while deciphering terms like "pot still style" and "inpeated single malts." Visit www.bcae.org or call 617-267-4430 for more information.

RAISE A GLASS: Marie of Model Club Inc. (opposite) toasts the Emerald Isle with a pint of stout at The Kinsale near Government Center.

6. SHOW YOUR CELTIC PRIDE

In the Hub, green isn't just the hue of shamrocks and leprechauns—it's the fighting color of our beloved Boston Celtics, who head into the home stretch of their regular season in March and early April. With a third consecutive year of playoff basketball in the offing, there's no better time than this month to cheer on Paul Pierce, Kevin Garnett, Ray Allen and the rest of the Cs as they take on opponents like the New York Knicks (March 17), the San Antonio Spurs (March 28) and the Cleveland Cavaliers (April 4) at TD Garden. Refer to listing, page 48.

7. (DROP) KICK OUT THE JAMS

Man cannot get by on "Danny Boy" and "When

OPPOSITE PHOTO BY DEREK KOUYOUMJIAN

Irish Eyes Are Smilin'" alone, so when March rolls around in Boston, we're fortunate to have hometown Celtic/punk superstars The Dropkick Murphys on hand to rip it up. The band behind hits like "I'm Shipping Up to Boston" and "The State of Massachusetts" plays its traditional six-night March residency at the House of Blues in the shadow of the band's beloved Fenway Park. The hottest ticket in town, the shows take place at 7 p.m. on March 12, 14, 15, 16 & 17, with two shows on March 13 at 1 and 8 p.m. Refer to listing, page 46.

8. GIVE TWO (GREEN) THUMBS UP

Ireland has appeared on movie screens for generations, serving as the setting for films ranging from classics like "The Quiet Man" to '90s hits like "The Commitments" and "Waking Ned Devine" to the recent "Leap Year." From March 25–28, the Boston Irish Film Festival screens the next generation of beloved Irish cinema, presenting the cream of the crop of contemporary films detailing the Irish experience. The festival awards prizes for the best film and best documentary, and has annually honored a prominent Irish filmmaker with the Excellence Award (prior winners include directors John Boorman and Jim Sheridan and actors Gabriel Byrne and Aidan Quinn). For schedule of films and ticket information, visit www.irishfilmfestival.com.

9. CRAWL AROUND FANEUIL HALL

Celebrating an evening soaking in the Celtic culture of Boston at one of its many exceptional Irish pubs is a guaranteed good time—however, doing it at 13 of the city's best pubs is an adventure. Local party purveyors Boston Party Tours have teamed with travel providers Tenon Tours to present the second annual Boston St. Patrick's Irish Pub Challenge on March 13. Participants pay $25, split into teams and are given free admission to a baker's dozen of Irish pubs around bustling Faneuil Hall. Over a 13-hour span (pacing yourself is, admittedly, critical), you'll drink in the atmosphere (and other things) at bars like The Black Rose, Kitty O'Shea's, The Purple Shamrock, The Harp and others. Best of all, 13 lucky pub crawlers win a free round-trip flight from Boston to Shannon, Ireland for the International Irish Pub Challenge in May. Visit www.bostonirishpub.com for more information.

10. . . .OR JUST CHOOSE ONE PUB, AND SAY "SLAINTE!"

If you regard drinking as less of an endurance sport and more of a relaxing way to spend an evening with friends, pick one of the following area Irish pubs and you'll be filled with the spirit of St. Patrick all March long:

- MCGREEVY'S, 911 Boylston St., 617-262-0911. Co-owned by Dropkick Murphys founder Ken Casey, this Back Bay watering hole is beloved by rock fans and Boston Irish alike.
- THE BURREN, refer to listing, page 62. This friendly pub offers Irish set dancing classes every Monday and serves patrons food and drink to live Celtic music nightly.
- THE KINSALE, refer to listing, page 63. Located in Government Center, just steps from City Hall, this warm and homey pub/restaurant was designed and built in Ireland, with stained glass windows and dark wooden beams evoking an Old World feel.
- DOYLE'S, 3484 Washington St., Jamaica Plain, 617-524-2345. Since its inception in 1882, Doyle's has been a popular spot for Irish politicians (Boston's had a few, as you can imagine), and each St. Paddy's Day the pub hosts a battle of the bagpipe bands.
- PORTER BELLY'S, refer to listing, page 65. Situated in Brighton, a traditionally Irish community on the outskirts of Boston, Porter Belly's offers a varied menu of food and drink and a younger vibe courtesy of its proximity to Boston University and Boston College.
- WOODY'S L STREET TAVERN, 658 E. 8th St., South Boston, 617-268-4335. Made famous when it was used as Matt Damon and Ben Affleck's hangout in the film Good Will Hunting, this small and unassuming neighborhood bar is a huge draw for out-of-towners, to the resigned bemusement of its clientele of locals. The seaside community of Portland, known for its artsy boutiques, is also home to a burgeoning nightlife scene and the Red Sox AA affiliate, the Portland Sea Dogs. And Maine's coastal communities are renowned for their abundance of fresh lobster and beautiful beaches, including Kennebunk Beach and Ogunquit Beach.

MUSEUM OF FINE ARTS

GARDNER MUSEUM

This neighborhood is best known for Fenway Park, home to our beloved Boston Red Sox, but its name actually comes from the Fens, the green parkland that winds its way through the area and makes up part of the famed Emerald Necklace. Nightclub dwellers should check out Lansdowne Street for dancing, sports bars and even a bowling alley, while Kenmore Square, famous for the Citgo sign, has become a bustling dining destination.

While the roar of the crowd at Red Sox games and the hubbub at nearby restaurants and bars grows louder each year, it doesn't overshadow The Fenway's status as a cultural mecca within Boston. The world-renowned Museum of Fine Arts resides on Huntington Avenue, and is the city's premier destination for viewing works of art from some of the most famous artists of all time. Also, the Isabella Stewart Gardner Museum displays the collection of the wealthy philanthropist in a beautiful building complete with a garden courtyard. Classical music lovers can take abundant delight in the numerous performing ensembles housed in the Fens, including The Boston Conservatory, New England Conservatory, and most prominently, The Boston Symphony Orchestra and its home performance venue, Symphony Hall. Square Deal

Just across the Charles River from Boston, Cambridge is a diverse and cosmopolitan city abounding with art, culture, fine dining and exceptional shopping. Yet, thanks to its division into "squares," Cambridge retains the feel of several small neighborhoods, each with its individual flair and style.

Central Square is the social center for Cambridge, with great restaurants, bars and music venues such as the Middle East Cafe, T.T. the Bear's Place and The Cantab Lounge.

Harvard Square is home to Harvard University's sprawling campus, including its associated theaters and museums. In addition, visitors flock to the neighborhood for a diverse range of shops, restaurants, coffee shops, bars and clubs that offer something to satisfy every taste.

The quieter, more residential Inman Square boasts ethnic food shops, bars and restaurants along with local and national jazz acts at Ryles Jazz Club.

Kendall Square, home to MIT and many bio-tech firms, is also host to foreign and independent films at Kendall Square Cinema.

Just beyond Harvard Square, Porter Square is full of eclectic second-hand shops and restaurants, as well as live music at the Lizard Lounge and Toad. Ⓟ

Have a Ball

THE HARLEM GLOBETROTTERS
TD Garden
March 27 at 7:30 p.m., March 28 at 1 p.m.

If you find yourself with the urge to whistle "Sweet Georgia Brown" while in Boston, it's with good reason—the weekend of March 27 & 28 sees the return of basketball's premiere showmen, the Harlem Globetrotters, to the Hub as part of their 2010 "Magical Memories" World Tour. The current high-flying Globetrotters lineup features veterans like Special K Daley, Handles Franklin and the dynamic duo of Flight Time Lang and Big Easy Lofton (the breakout stars of last season's "The Amazing Race" on CBS), along with a host of other basketball-dribbling, crowd-pleasing athletes. If you're looking for a fun activity for the whole family, checking out the Globetrotters is a definite slam dunk. Refer to listing, page 48. —Meredith Wilson

A Glorious Day

LADY DAY AT EMERSON'S BAR AND GRILLE
Lyric Stage Company
Beginning March 26

Like so many gifted artists gone too soon, Billie Holiday left behind not only a legacy of great performances, but also an aura of mystique and curiosity about the demons that plagued her. It's those two sides of Holiday that are explored in Lyric Stage Company's production of Lanie Roberston's Lady Day at Emerson's Bar and Grille. Acclaimed local actress and vocalist Jacqui Parker brings the beloved chanteuse to life in this adaptation of the off-Broadway hit built around the soulful and emotional music of "Lady Day." Set in a Philadelphia nightclub just months before her death, Lady Day explores Holiday's tumultuous life and struggle with drugs interspersed with Parker's renditions of songs like "God Bless the Child" and "Strange Fruit," offering a compelling portrait of a songbird as tormented as she was talented. Refer to listing, page 49. —Sofia Constantin

SATIRIZING SCOTT

YOU'RE A GOOD MAN, SCOTT BROWN
Improv Asylum
March 21 & 28 at 7 p.m., March 24 & 31 at 8 p.m.

The idea of a Republican taking over the late Ted Kennedy's Senate seat might have elicited chuckles a few months ago, but now that it's a reality, the comedians at Improv Asylum are hoping more for side-splitting laughter. This month, the North End improv theater unveils its new musical, You're a Good Man, Scott Brown, poking fun at the historic race that resulted in Massachusetts' first Republican senator in close to 40 years through outrageous song and dance numbers. No candidate remains off limits—Brown's former opponents Martha Coakley and Joe Kennedy are roasted, as well as our state's new centerfold…err… statesman. Refer to listing, page 44. —Emma Snider

MINUS 32 MILLION WORDS: Boston native and former sitcom star Sue Costello returns to town to perform her one-woman show at the Boston Center for the Arts. Refer to listing, page 49.

Identity Crisis

RONI HORN AKA RONI HORN
Institute of Contemporary Art
Through June 13

Themes of identity and change permeate the Institute of Contemporary Art's 30-year retrospective of New York-based artist Roni Horn. Working in a variety of media and materials—from glass, metal and plastic sculpture to photography to drawing and collage—Horn showcases her fascination with subjects that can vary from one moment to the next, whether it be a person, a river, an ant farm or the volcanic island nation of Iceland. This is best exemplified by 15 photographs of the Thames River—footnoted with random thoughts about the fluid nature of water and the river itself—shot at varying times of day and in changing weather. Horn also expresses her affinity for Emily Dickinson with her three-dimensional sculptures of the poet's own words, engaging in a long-distance dialogue with the famed 19th-century recluse and Massachusetts native. Refer to listing, page 51.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

LUIS MELENDEZ: MASTER OF THE SPANISH STILL LIFE
Museum of Fine Arts
Through May 9

Experience Spanish cuisine—albeit vicariously—in a whole new way at the Museum of Fine Arts' display of the works of 18th-century Spain's still life master, Luis Melendez. So exquisitely detailed that you can almost smell and taste the fruits, breads and meats depicted in the show's 30 spectacular oil paintings, the works showcase Melendez's uncanny mastery of texture and light, from reflective copper vessels to shiny fish scales to the fine bumps and pits on the skins of oranges and melons. Unable to secure his dream position as a royal painter, Melendez was not a great success during his lifetime, but it is easy to see why the appreciation of Melendez's work has grown over the intervening centuries. Refer to listing, page 52.

A Hidden Hotspot

PROHIBITED
8 Westland Ave.
617-267-1200

Shhhhhh—it's a secret, but Boston's got a brand-new nightclub that pretty much redefines "under the radar." Prohibited, the Hub's new speakeasy, is a great place to hang out with friends—if you know where to find it. Hidden within the basement of new eatery Symphony 8, Prohibited requires a password for entry (to keep the riffraff out), which can be obtained by a quick visit to the bar's Facebook page. Once you're in, you'll enjoy swanky 1920s-themed libations as long as you adhere to the bar's code of etiquette, including such rules as "don't bring anyone that you wouldn't take to mom's house for dinner" and, believe it or not, no talking on your phone. That's it, you've heard the word—but remember, you didn't hear it from us.

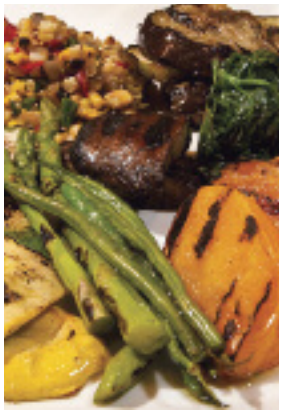
(Gluten) Free-for-All



Eating out in Boston is an embarrassment of riches for most of us, but for those who suffer from celiac disease the options aren't nearly as limitless. Thankfully, some area restaurants have taken notice and crafted special gluten-free menus that don't contain wheat, rye, barley or oats. The Legal Sea Foods chain offers variations on many of its popular appetizers, entrees, sides and desserts. Myers + Chang in the South End makes Asian cuisine available to all with dishes like Thai ginger chicken salad, oyster wokked omelettes and nasi goring (Indonesian fried rice). And lovers of Italian can eat without fear at Davio's, where the baby spinach and warm eggplant caponata and the grilled seasonal vegetables in fresh herbs and balsamic vinaigrette (pictured) are served for lunch and dinner. Thanks to these restaurants, and a growing number of others, no appetite has to be left unsatisfied in the Hub. Refer to listings, pages 65, 74 & 75. —Meredith Wilson
